

Sample Motivation Letter for Volunteer

Dear (Name of recipient),

I am writing this letter of motivation to express my interest in the Volunteering position at your esteemed organisation. I am quite impressed by the impact radar and projects initiated by your esteemed organisation in supporting underprivileged communities. My thorough research and deep self reflection convinced me that this opportunity is a once-in-a-lifetime chance to broaden my perspective and explore the depths of sustainable development.

I completed my Bachelor's program in Social Work and earned my Master's degree in International Development Studies. These study programs helped me gain research skills and practical learning experiences through field visits and internships. I volunteered at a local shelter and community outreach program during my undergraduate years. This opportunity gave me a deep insight into the transformative power of community empowerment. This experience motivated me to undertake my Master's to broaden my horizon to an international level.

During my Master's program, I was exposed to various topics like Foreign Policy, International Political Economy, Emerging Economies, Conflict Management, etc. Alongside these comprehensive courses, I volunteered at the Refugee Camp at "location".

I helped organise and host educational workshops on basic hygiene. Additionally, I organised a recruitment drive to provide children with mentors and tutors. These experiences helped me cement my position on education being the greatest antidote to initiate positive change.

On earning my degree, I joined AgroSatya to help build and implement sustainable gardening systems for disadvantaged communities in “location”. I led a team of six volunteers who mobilised the community, conducted live workshops on organic farming and involved them in the process. Together with creating a community gardening system, we were able to establish strong bonds among the people. This helped me realise the significance of grassroot level involvement in combating food insecurity.

I resonate with the educational and healthcare projects of “name of organisation”. The most recent initiative in “location” called Bloodline is known for its efficient operations and far reaching impact. The project aims to provide the infrastructure to store rare blood groups and revive old blood banks. This initiative inspires me and I am looking forward to contributing to this serious social issue in underdeveloped nations.

I have excellent communication skills and team building capabilities as I was involved in various fundraising and event management initiatives since my schooling. As the president of the student council, I led the Children’s Day fundraising campaign in YYYY. I successfully coordinated with sponsors, volunteers, students and local authorities to raise a handsome total of XXXXX for rescuing children affiliated to streets.

I am available from DD.MM.YYYY for XX hours per week. I can adjust my schedule to accommodate the requirements of the company and am determined to do so. I am also looking forward to the chance to evolve into an impact agent through the experiences I gain working with “name of organisation”. I am certain that collaborating with development experts incubated by your organisation can help me in understanding community development practices better.

I am concluding by expressing my gratitude for your time and consideration for the Volunteer position at “name of organisation”. I am looking forward to showcasing my interest and enthusiasm in an interview. I am hereby attaching my CV for your kind evaluation. Thank you.

Sincerely,
“Name of applicant”
